Review of the Santiago Victory Resumed by Court of Inquiry.

TAKING OF TESTIMONY CONTINUES.

Lieutenant Wells on the Stand Highly Commends the Courage and Conduct of Commodore Schley at All Times.

Washington, Oct. 21.—After two days rest the Schley court of inquiry resumed its sessions Monday. The court was prompt in beginning the proceedings and not only the members of the court but counsel were apparently in brighter and fresher frame of mind than usual. After witnesses of former days had been recalled for correcting their testimony, Lieutenant B. F. Wells, jr., secretary to Commodore Schley during the Cuban campaign, resumed the testimony he began Friday. After a few preliminaries he resumed his narration of the battle of Santiago and was questioned at some length by Mr. Rayner before he was turned over to Captain Lemly and Mr. Hanna for cross-examination.

Other witnesses called for the day were Edward Graham, a correspondent who was with Commodore Schley on the Brooklyn from the beginning of the campaign at Hampton Roads until its close; Lieutenant Simpson, who served on the Brooklyn and Dennis J. Cronin.

In his testimony Lieutenant Wells said he did not remember the ranges at which the Brooklyn fired but thought 1,400 yards was the shortest. He described the turn of the Brooklyn and the chase after the Spanish ships. When the Viscaya ran ashore, the Colon was about 10,000 yards ahead of the Brooklyn and for a time firing ceased. He said he received orders to get a quantity of rapid fire ammunition. Owing to the character of the coast it was expected that the Brooklyn and the Colon would come to close quarters. He was ordered to have this ammunition ready to close with the Colon and give her a rapid fire when they got close together. He then described the rest of the chase and the final surrender of the Colon. He said he did not see the Texas when the Brooklyn made her turn. At one time during the battle, he said, the Brooklyn seemed to be alone engaging the three ships. A number of dispatches were shown witness and he was asked as to their receipt by Commodore Schley. One of them from Secretary Long to the American consul at Kingston, dated Washington, May 28, saying that it must be delivered to Schley at once and informing him (Schley) that unless unsafe for his squadron the department wished him to remain off Santiago and asking if he could not take possession of Guantanamo as a coaling station; also a dispatch from Secretary Long to Captain Cotton of the Harvard, dated Washington, May 28, enclosing a dispatch to Commodore Schley telling him to hold on at all hazards, as the New York, Oregon and New Orleans were on the way; also two dispatches from Secretary Long to the dispatch boat Harvard dated Washington, May 29, one informing him that the commander-in-chief had started to join him and the other telling him that Sagua, 25 miles east of Santiago, had been reported as a good place to land from which it would be easy to reach the heights in the rear of Santiago, witness said these were received May 31. The cablegram from Secretary Long dated Washington, May 27, to the cable office at Mole St. Nicholas, Hayti, directing that it be delivered to the next American war vessel to arrive and informing Commodore Schley that "the most absolutely urgent thing now is to know positively whether the Spanish division was in Santiago," was shown the witness. He stated it was received by Commodore Schley May 30. The Colon was discovered in the harbor of Santiago by Schley the morning of May 29.

Mr. Rayner exhibited a chart upon which there were notations regarding the soundings taken in the vicinity of Santiago harbor and the strength of the batteries there, this information being given as of date April 5, 1898. "Now give me the date the navy department issued the order which has been referred to in this case about not crippling ships by the shore batteries," said Mr. Rayner. "April 6, 1896," was the response.

Mr. Rayner asked the witness if he had any other information in reference to the batteries at Santiago except that given on the map referred to. He stated that Commodore Schley received memorandum of information from the bureau of naval intelligence embodying the same facts as contained in the chart.

Mr. Rayner—"Am I right in saying that you perhaps saw more or as much of Commodore Schley during the whole of this Spanish war as any one else and came in contact with him as much as anybody?" "I saw him daily and all through each day, generally speaking."

"Did you see him frequently during the battle of July 3?" "No, sir, I saw him only during chase of the Colon." "What was his general bearing, conduct and manner any day in which there was a battle or at any other time?" "So far as my observation went he was thoroughly fearless and self-possessed on all occasions." "Was he at any time within your knowledge laboring under any mental excitement?" "No sir."

Mr. Hanna cross examined Lieutenant Wells, who was still on the stand when court adjourned for the day, but developed nothing of additional importance.

ITO AT WHITE HOUSE.

Grand Old Man of Japan Dined With President Roosevelt.

Washington, Oct. 21.—Marquis Ito was the guest of President Roosevelt at luncheon Monday. The marquis called at the White House early in the day to pay his respects to the president. He was escorted by the resident Japanese minister, Mr. Takahira, and by Mr. Tsuzuki, formerly vice minister of foreign affairs of Japan, but at present acting as one of the secretaries to the marquis. The president cordially welcomed his visitors.

The marquis speaks English with fair facility. The president was much interested in their conversation. Having been prime minister of Japan several times, and especially during the war with China, and having taken a leading part in the establishment of constitutional government in Japan, the marquis is particularly well informed on topics in which the president is interested. Mr. Tsuzuki, who is also a member of the house of peers of Japan and a man of strong character, is giving special attention to finance, industrial and commercial conditions in the United States, and has observed many things of interest even in the short time he has been in this country, so he also was able to add his share to the interesting conversation with the president.

With the president and Marquis Ito at luncheon were Secretary of State Hay and Mr. Tsuzuki. After leaving the White House the marquis and his secretary called at the state department and paid their respects to Secretary Hay and Assistant Secretary Hill.

Did They Disgorge?

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 21.—Although the story cannot be confirmed from official sources, it is believed that money and securities taken from the vault of the Merchants National bank by A. G. Smith, teller and L. K. Swift, bookkeeper, before they disappeared last Thursday night, have been returned to the bank. A number of bags, apparently containing money, and bundles of documents, believed to be bonds and bank securities were delivered to the Merchants National bank by lawyers who have been understood to represent the absent employees. A bank examiner from Washington has begun work on the books. The doors opened as usual Monday. The directors have announced that the deficiency in the funds of the bank resulting from the defalcations of Smith and Swift is $115,000; also that securities taken have been returned.

Wrecked Vessel Floated.

New York, Oct. 21.—A souvenir of the Galveston hurricane of Sept. 8, 1900, has just reached this port in the shape of the British steamship Roma, of 1,722 tons net, which was blown broadside on by the current and swept through four bridges. Charles Clarke & Co., who floated six other steamships stranded by the hurricane, undertook to float the Roma and she was sold to James Jerome, manager of the Saginaw Steamship company of San Francisco. The wreckers dug a deep trench and floated the steamer. The Roma will be dry-docked and overhauled at this port, whence she will double Cape Horn for the Pacific trade. Her owners, it is said, by expending three-fourths of her cost in repairs, will be allowed to fly American flag.

Future Kaiser Coming.

New York, Oct. 21.—Rumor has it that there is a possibility that Crown Prince Wilhelm of Germany will visit the United States, and particularly New Jersey about April and May of next year. Emperor William is now having constructed at a shipyard in New Jersey a new yacht ordered through the German minister at Washington. He intends ultimately to give the yacht to the crown prince, and on that account is desirous of having the son present when the trial trip is made. He also wants the prince to study American methods in shipbuilding. The yacht will be ready in April. The crown prince, if he comes, will be accompanied by several naval officers.

Consular Official Resigns.

Santiago, Chile, Oct. 21.—Henry J. Lenderink, secretary of the United States legation, has resigned the position and will soon leave for the United States.

Irish Ed'or Given an Ovation When Released From Prison.

Imprisoned For Publishing Articles Alleged to Be Seditious and Libelous—Vienna Paper's Opinion of Kitchener—Foreign News.

Dublin, Oct. 21.—Patrick A. McHugh, member of parliament for the north division of Leitrim, who was sentenced April 23 to six months imprisonment as a first-class misdemeanant, for publishing in his paper, The Sligo Champion, so-called seditious libels calculated to interfere with the administration of justice, was released from Kilmainham jail Monday. Mr. McHugh was accorded an enthusiastic reception by a large crowd of people who repeatedly cheered him and eagerly crushed forward to shake hands with him.

The lord mayor of Dublin, Sir Thomas D. Pile, a numerous deputation from Sligo and John O'Dowd, member for South Sligo, and John O'Donnell, member for South Mayo, were among those who welcomed him to liberty. Mr. McHugh drove in the lord mayor's carriage, followed by a long procession of carriages, to a hotel, where a luncheon was given in his honor.

Mr. McHugh will sail for New York with John Redmond and John O'Donnell on the steamer Majestic, which leaves Queenstown Thursday.

Kitchener as a Hangman.

Vienna, Oct. 21.—Referring to the fresh outbreak of Anglophobia in Vienna, the influential Catholic organ, The Vaterland, publishes an article headed "Lord Kitchener as a Hangman." It says: "The commander-in-chief of the British forces in South Africa, in despair of being able to conquer the Boers by honest war, has for a long time had recourse to brutality. His bloodthirstiness was formerly restrained by the British government, but it now appears that a free hand has been given him." The Vaterland goes on to say that "The announcement that Commandant Botha will meet violence by reprisals will convince all that the Boers are not intimidated, but only exasperated by Lord Kitchener's inhumanity. The sanguinary seed sown by the British commander will produce a harvest of blood, and none can blame the Boer leaders if they have recourse to a terrible retribution."

DETECTIVE KILLED.

He Attempted to Run In a Convict Who Shot Him.

Cincinnati, Oct. 21.—Detective Galvin D. Crim was fatally shot by John Foley. Crim was in citizens' clothes going to a train for a vacation. He encountered Foley on the street and recognizing him as a recently released convict who was wanted for picking pockets at funerals, Crim placed him under arrest and started to the station house. Suddenly Foley drew a revolver and fired, sending a bullet through Crim's body. Two other policemen caught Foley.

Foley is also known as Dan Driscoll and as "The Goat." Crim was the leading detective in the famous Pearl Bryan murder case. Last March he served as personal guard for President McKinley at the inauguration.

LAKES OF KILLARNEY.

Miss Margaret Molloy, of Germantown, Writes Interestingly of Her Travels in Lovely Erin.

KILLARNEY, IRELAND, Oct. 9th, 1901.

Dear Bulletin: Just a short letter from across the sea to let the dear folks at home know of our wanderings in lovely Erin.

We had a glorious voyage, and for the first few days the novelty of being on board a ship on the way to see the glories and antiquities of the old world, furnished sufficient food for thought and we were not in the least lonely on the vast deep. And when one becomes accustomed to the motion of the ship a promenade on the capacious decks brings an exhilaration and enjoyment to be felt in no other place in the world. After we passed Sandy Hook the ocean was calm and skies lovely in tones of blue and white, caught from the changing sea, and the sunsets were too gorgeously grand for plain language to describe, the god of day sinking out of sight as it were in misty golden glory. When passing the banks of Newfoundland we ran into a storm; then the scenery changed and hoary-headed waves swept the decks. It was "water, water, everywhere," but our gallant steamer wrestled bravely with old Neptune, and in a little less than six days after leaving New York we safely landed at Queenstown—a pretty city picturesquely built, terraced fashion, overlooking the lovely harbor.

The weather here is ideal, just the kind for touring, and we have visited many places, both town and country and very pleasing to the eye of the traveler are the pretty country cottages with bright hued flowers and lovely shrubbery, giving a hint of "Home, Sweet Home." After spending a few days in Queenstown our next city to visit was Cork, famous here for its pretty women. It is a charming place, the second city in Ireland and styled the capital of the South. We visited its interesting points and fine churches. Went to St. Mary's Church and heard the chime of its famous bells, immortalized by Father Prout in the famous lyric, "The Bells of Shandon," and though he spent much of his life abroad his remains rest in the church yard, at the foot of the tower. Our next mecca was Blarney Castle—alone in its glory, except what time and nature has flung around its grand old towers. Of course our pilgrimage here was to kiss the famous stone, hoping to acquire the virtue imparted by its magic touch. But to accomplish this the visitor must be lowered head downward to reach the stone. The winds were walling through the turrets in tones of softest blarney. We kissed the stone (in our minds) and hurried off for pastures new. Our next sojourn was in Athlone, a spot dear to our hearts for many reasons. While there we went to "Auburn" and saw the ruins of Goldsmith's home. "The Deserted Village" he sang so sweetly of is now a little town called "The Village of the Roses," getting the pretty name from the wild flowering vines that almost hide the cottages from view. We next visited the Capital City, Dublin, and found much to instruct and admire in its historically interesting places. Had a delightful drive through Phoenix Park, visited the library of Trinity College which contains many curious books and manuscripts of the early centuries. Dublin is charmingly situated on the Liffey, about one mile and a half from the sea. I should like to write of other places and scenes, but if I do I shall not have time to tell you of lovely Killarney. How I wish I could imprison in words my impressions of these charming surroundings. To me it seems neither legend, song or story has told the half of Killarney's enchanting beauty. The tourists' district of the place presents to the stranger one of the most beautiful and unrivaled combinations of scene conceivable. In this vicinity there is lake and mountain, streamlet and waterfall, ruin with legend and tradition galore, while brightest sunshine seems to fling a witching beauty around the Lakes of Killarney; that no wonder the poet said: "Angels fold their wings and rest, in this eden of the West."

Our party reached this place last Wednesday eve after a forty mile coach ride through the mountains from Glengariff. The jolting of this ride we shall ever remember, but the magnificent scenery with which we were regaled repaid us, with double interest. The road lies along steep mountains and over slender bridges, and for many miles we were in sight of Glengariff Bay—a tranquil arm of the Atlantic nestling in the rocky glens, fringed in tender grace with unfading verdure. This bay seems a favorite harbor for American yachts, and anchored near were a few floating the "Stars and Stripes" at half mast for our lamented President. From Killarney to the "Gap of Dunloe" is a fine exhilarating drive, which distance we rode in the regulation "jaunting car." Near the entrance to the gap is "Kate Kearney's cottage" where refreshments are served by a descendant of the famous peasant beauty. This sublime and beautiful gap or pass, according to tradition (when time was young) was rent asunder by the blow of a sword. In these prosaic days, a violent concussion of nature would appear more natural. However, it is a wild, lonely, magnificent defile, lying between two mountains whose summits seem wrapped in clouds. At the entrance to this path we were provided with ponies, and remembering I was "bred in old Kentucky," I mounted one and cantered off with the party. Guides were at hand and our ride through the mountains began. As we proceeded, on either side of the narrow road masses of projecting rock fearfully overhanging the pathway, and seemed to threaten us with destruction at every step. Marvelous were the echoes awakened by a bugle melody from among the solid mountain walls and the whole scene and impression made by it was one of wild grandeur and awe. After three hours mountain ride we reached the Black Valley. Its gloom, and hence the term black, is caused by the great height of the surrounding mountains. Emerging from this gloomy place we reached the shore of the Upper Lake where a small boat was awaiting us with lunch and to carry the whole party across the water. Gently did it glide out on the crest of the laughing waves, the ride being intensely romantic and perfectly delightful. At a point where the waters of one lake flow into the other through a narrow strait, "rapids" are formed and reaching this point our captain shouted, "We are now going to shoot the chutes!" "All hold fast." A moment later we were deluged with foamy spray and safely passed "the meeting of the waters" and gliding into the Lower Lake we passed "Sweet Innisfallen Island," the beauty of which Moore described in song; and rowing near the base of Torc Mountain we touched the "Druids Circle." One of the boatmen whose duty it seemed was to talk as well as row, regaled the party with a romance of every mountain and tale of every islet we passed. A fourteen-mile ride on the lakes landed us at "Castle Ross," the home of the "great O'Donoghue," of past glory. We strolled through the lovely grounds of this old fortification and mused on the historic remembrance that this was the last castle in Ireland to fall under Cromwell's invasion. We next went to see "Muckross Abbey," a grand old place in dismantled glory. The ruins consist of abbey and church which was founded for the Order Franciscans in the thirteenth century. The great beauty of these ruins are its cloisters which are in the form of a piazza surrounding a dark court yard. In the center of this enclosure a majestic yew tree spreads its branches, planted over five hundred years ago. This tree, coeval with the abbey, adds to the impressiveness of the place. A living sentinel, as it were, over the tombs of the departed.

We have seen castles, abbeys and churches, mountains, lakes and sylvan glades, and what impresses the mind mostly in this region is the deep conviction you feel that there is no dramatic effect in all you behold—that it is nature you contemplate, such as she is in all her wildness and beauty. We have spent many days of pure delight here and would love to linger, but the sands of time are running fast and to-morrow we are off for London and a week later for the continent and must bid fair Killarney farewell, but the impression of the place will live in memory as a panorama of matchless beauty. Sincerely, M. M.

MISSED A BIG STAKE.

Thieves Get Into Chicago Postoffice and Rob Stamp Vault.

TUNNEL DUG UNDER THE BUILDING.

They Aimed at Cashier's Vault Which Contained Large Sum of Money But Miscalculated the Distance by Six Feet.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Burglars stole $74,610 worth of stamps from the Chicago postoffice and escaped without leaving the slightest clew. A tunnel which had taken a week or more to complete, was run from the rear of the building and a hole was drilled through the steel bottom of the whole-sale stamp vault. There were 97 small holes around the square cut out and some of the drilling looked several days old.

The burglars crawled under the flooring about 300 feet. The stamps taken were carried away in a wagon. The opening made was only six feet from the cashier's vault.

The work of forming an entrance to the vault had evidently been going forward many days. It is believed, however, that the intention of the thieves had been to enter the cashier's vault in which there was $35,000 in money and stamps valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars. The bottom of the vault is of steel half an inch thick. The holes were bored in a space 18 inches square, just enough to allow the entrance of a man's body, had been been so weakened that it was possible to take out the whole plate with little difficulty. So carefully had the job been planned that men working in other parts of the building had not the slightest inkling of the robbery being worked almost under their noses.

The robbers drove up to the nearest corner of the postoffice building in a wagon, tracks of which could be seen plainly. The building is a temporary affair and the men had only to open a little door to admit themselves under the flooring. To reach the vault it was necessary to crawl about 300 feet over odds and ends of boards which littered the way. The route evidently had been carefully studied, for a detective who went under without knowledge of the locations became lost and was nearly overcome by foul odors before assistance reached him.

Of the $74,610 in stamps taken, $4,712 were in "postage due" stamps and $2,060 in special delivery stamps. So that the convertible stamps amounted to $67,828, of which $41,328 were Pan-American stamps of eight and ten cent denominations.

R. B. Spaulding, chief clerk of the stamp department, discovered the robbery when he opened the vault Monday. The safe had been locked with its contents apparently secure at 5 p. m. Saturday. Mr. Spaulding at once notified Postoffice Inspector Stuart, who hurried from his home and began an investigation, assisted by his deputies and a squad of detectives from the city hall. After completing the search the inspector said it was the largest stamp robbery ever done in the history of the postal service in this country.

To get at the vault the men entered through a trap door. A few feet in they encountered a brick wall which they dug through rather than prowl around looking for a clearer route. The wall, like the others under the building, is of flimsy construction and it could not have taken them long to pick their way through it. About 100 feet further on they ran against another wall and this also they dug through. On the way they also encountered a number of pipes, and as the floor is but two feet, and in some places three feet above the ground, they tunneled under the pipes. Their whole course is plainly marked.

The wholesale stamp vault, like the cashier's vault and the money order vault, is supported by a brick wall. It forms a square and was airtight. In this the robbers broke two holes, possible to secure more air, for the air was very foul, or to have an extra place of egress in case of discovery. For light they used dry batteries, one of which they left behind. This and the wagon tracks are the only clews. The space under the vault is large enough to allow a man to stand upright and the work must have been comparatively easy with the drills and steel saws used. The stamps were arranged in 20 pound bundles, and the weight of the load carried must have been 100 pounds. Evidently one man handled the packages down to the others waiting below. As their progress must have been slow, carrying even one bundle through all those tunnels crawling on all fours, it is apparent that they worked for hours getting the booty to the wagon.

Postmaster Frederick E. Coyne is in Washington. He is responsible for the loss till an act of congress frees him from it. For amounts up to $2,000 the postmaster general has authority to relieve postmasters.

Of the stamps stolen 1,776,000 were one cent and 1,662,900 two cent stamps. The robbers got 150 $1, 307 $2, and 105 $5 stamps.

Inspector Stuart said he thought the robbers would have difficulty in disposing of the larger denominations.

This sale was not started by accident. It didn't come by "a streak of luck." The necessities of an estate settlement demanded it. Careful planning, judicious buying, courage to sacrifice profits (as the better part of valor for us, as well as for you) determined its success. And success sometimes brings inconvenience. It has so rushed us we could not always wait upon you with the promptness you desired—and deserved. Last week we strengthened our sales force therefore promise quicker attention in future. Another inconvenience of our very busy days. Our ad remained unchanged too long for sustained interest. Hereafter better arrangements in this respect will prevent a repetition. ENTHUSIASTIC

Is Congressman Kehoe Over the Wealth of Big Sandy Valley.

Believes That Section Will Eventually Become the Busiest and Richest Portion of Kentucky.

Congressman Kehoe is home from a trip up the Big Sandy river where he spent the past ten days personally investigating the wealth and needs of that section, with a view to better equip himself to lead the fight in the next Congress for the further improvement of the Big Sandy and its forks. He traveled about 600 miles on the trip, half or more of which he made on horseback and in vehicles. He feels fully repaid for the trouble of his trip, and tells the BULLETIN that he now has enough indisputable information to fully convince Congress of the justice and propriety of locking and damming the Louisa and Tug forks of the Big Sandy.

Mr. Kehoe is enthusiastic over the wealth of that section of our State, and is confident of securing sufficient government aid to complete the needed improvements in the Big Sandy and its tributaries within the next few years. He says the mineral wealth of the Big Sandy valley far exceeds what it is commonly thought to be, and that one must see it to fully appreciate its greatness. His description of the vast fields of valuable coking, bituminous and cannon coals, forests of fine timber, paying gas and oil wells would impress anyone with the greatness of this virtually undeveloped section. Slackwater is all that is required, he believes, to cause a full development of this section, and it is his opinion that the present generation will see the Big Sandy valley the busiest and wealthiest portion of Kentucky. Mr. Kehoe feels that the resulting benefits will prove profitable to the whole country, and especially so to West Virginia, Kentucky and the Ohio valley.

In Congressman Kehoe, the Big Sandy section has an energetic and valuable friend, and if the desired improvements are not made it certainly will not be due to lack of earnest work on his part. And as he has a way of getting what he goes after, we predict that he will succeed in this understanding. He is an ardent advocate of the improvement of all our waterways and ports, and favors the construction of an inter-ocean canal by this country without the "aid or consent of any other nation on earth." He leaves to-day to attend a meeting of the Ohio Valley Improvement Association which convenes at Paducah Wednesday. Every legitimate enterprise that has for its purpose the industrial development of our country and the advancement of our commerce will have the assistance of Mr. Kehoe, both in and out of Congress, but ship or other subsidy schemes will get neither aid nor comfort from him.

THE H. E. POGUE DISTILLERY CO.

LATE ALLEN GROVER.

In His Death the County Lost One of Her Valuable and Highly Esteemed Citizens.

Brief mention has been made of the death of Mr. Allen Grover at his home near Sardis last week.

The funeral took place at Shannon Thursday, the service being conducted by Rev. William H. Calvert, assisted by Revs. Ross and Howes.

Mr. Grover was born in Mason County near his late home sixty-nine years ago, and is survived by his wife, three sons and two daughters. He also leaves three brothers and two sisters.

The wave of sympathy and respect shown by the large number of friends who gathered about the casket to look their last upon the inanimate form of him who had for so long been enthroned in their affections was an evidence of the high esteem in which he was held. Mr. Grover was known by his contemporaries as a kindly-hearted, keen-minded, clear-sighted gentleman; by his poor neighbors as a generous friend and adviser; by his family as a tender, considerate husband and father. He will be greatly missed in the community; his place can scarcely be filled.

The song service at the funeral was appropriately conducted by Mrs. Nannie Dye Cracraft.

THE BEE HIVE

When Webster said the definition of a Blanket is "a covering" he proved his foresight for he knew there would be hundreds of manufacturers making blankets that are only light coverings. If Webster had been sure that every merchant would have demanded from the manufacturer the kind of Blanket WE sell he would have given a different meaning. But there is the "it." Anyway, at the rate we have been selling blankets the past week, seems as if everybody knew that we have the only stock of Blankets in town at the RIGHT prices and the prices are right at the very first look. If we Blanket you by night, let us Cloak you by day. We have the largest CLOAK Department in the city. We can please your taste and satisfy your pocketbook.

LADIES' CLOAKS FROM $3 98 to $35 00
 MISSES' CLOAKS FROM 3 98 to 15 00
 CHILDREN'S CLOAKS FROM 1 98 to 7 00
 INFANTS' CLOAKS FROM 1 25 to 5 00

When you buy a Cloak you want to be sure you are getting the right style—you want to be sure you are pleased—you want to be sure others are pleased. That's why you should come to the BEE HIVE. Our Cloaks are never sold until you are satisfied.

UNDERWEAR—Ask the first ten people you meet where they buy their Underwear. Nine and maybe ten will tell you the BEE HIVE. Don't ask them why; you know as well as they do. We have every kind you can think of. We can keep your temperature from milk warm to a boiling point, and we don't keep our Underwear on a heater to make you think it's warm, either.

MRS. MARGARET MATHEWS.

Wife of Mr. W. B. Mathews, the Lumber Merchant, Passed Away This Morning After an Illness of Several Weeks.

Her many friends throughout the city will learn with sincere sorrow of the death of Mrs. Margaret Mathews, wife of Mr. W. B. Mathews the lumber merchant.

Mrs. Mathews had not been in the enjoyment of good health for many years. For a month or so she had been confined to her bed by a severe cold, complicating her chronic troubles. It was thought last week that she was improving slowly, but this was only temporary. She passed peacefully to her eternal rest about 2:30 this morning.

Mrs. Mathews was born at Georgetown, O., her maiden name being Salisbury. She is survived by her husband and four children—Mr. John I. Mathews and Postmaster Clarence Mathews of this city, Mrs. J. C. Newcomb, wife of the editor of the Ripley Bee, and Mr. W. B. Mathews, Jr., a successful lawyer of Los Angeles, Cal. She also leaves two brothers, Mr. J. I. Salisbury, of this city, and Dr. Salisbury, of Los Angeles. A woman of exemplary Christian character, she enjoyed the love and respect of all who knew her.

The funeral will take place Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. at the family residence, 325 East Second street, Rev. Dr. Barbour officiating. Interment in the Maysville Cemetery.
